Dupont Circle & Farragut North Station AC Temporarily Out Of Service Courtesy of ANC Commissioner Mike Silverstein

Dupont Circle and Farragut North stations are currently operating without chilled air service due to a leak in a cooling line off Metro property.

Both Dupont Circle and Farragut North stations are cooled by a common chiller plant that is located in the median of Connecticut Avenue opposite the Farragut North L Street entrance. Delivery of chilled air to the stations has been disrupted by a suspected leak in the underground line that runs between the chiller plant and the stations.

UPDATE: Unfortunately, multiple attempts to locate and repair the leak(s) have proven unsuccessful along the 40 year old water pipes. As a result, the chillers are expected to out of service for the remainder of the 2015 season.

Universal Childcare Survey

A coalition of parents, policy experts from the National Women's Law Center, ChildCare Aware and legal advocates from Georgetown Law School are starting a campaign to get DC on a pathway towards universal childcare coverage. As of now, childcare is too expensive for most parents.

Take 2 mins out of your day to take this childcare survey. Your input as a parent is needed in the process.
